The director of environmental services and maintenance supervisor at Seymour Crossing recently was honored for service to patients and residents.

Tony Wright and 87 other front-line employees of the firm were recognized during its 18th annual Quest for Excellence awards at JW Marriott in downtown Indianapolis.

The keynote speaker was Jerald Cosey, who heads a ministry dedicated to improving seniors' quality of life. Cosey is executive director of Greenwood Meadows, one of nearly 90 communities operated statewide by American Senior Communities.

Honorees also included nurses and nursing assistants, business office staff, food services workers and others who consistently demonstrate a commitment to excellence, dedication to his or her job, a positive attitude and a whatever-it-takes passion for customer service.
